we would fail to give the great principles embodied in it the disposal their importance demands, for scholarship in itself is like the seven-hued bow of the vaulted firmanent; its summit is the dome of the sky, its boundaries are marked by the faraway horizon, and the variegated color by which it is adorned is caught from the morning dew-drops, the redoient tear of earth, as it glows and glitters in the sunbeams of the heavens! Its perfumed oil feeds a flagging fiame unextinguished by the storms of the ages and lights life's terrestrial iourney with its transforming hues unfading through the centuries. Committee of Hartford Business Men Visit the Metropolis of the Green River Country.

They Meet a Cordial Reception and re Enthusiastie on the Subject of Early Navigation of Rough River.

At the meeting of the Hartford Commercial Club at the Court House last Friday night Captain Daulley was present and laid before the elub an excellent plan by which the poeple of Hartford may secure slack water navigation of Rough River in a very few weeks. He further extended the freedom of the elegant line of steamers of the Evansville and Green River Navigation Company to the merin order to consult with the Evansville people.

Acting upon the plan suggested by Captain Danlley, a committee was appointed to confer with the merehants of Haitford and with the Navigation Company and business men of Evansville relative to eo-operation in the work in hand. The merchants, shippers and business men of Hartford responded in a very ereditable and business-like wny and with the assurance of substantial aid at home the committee composed of Attorney II. P. Taylor, Messrs. J. W. Ford and A D. White, Judge J. F. Carson lelt for Evansville at 3 o'elock Saturday evening. Captain Daulley and Mr. Dee Luce went with the party. They were driven overland to Ceralvo, where they boarded the elegant Steamer Evansville, in charge of Captaln E.

W. Bewley. The trip to Evansville was a most pleasant one, the gallant Captain Bewley and his erew leaving nothing undone that would add to the pleasure and convenience of the committee. They arrived at Evansville at 4 o'elock Sunday evening and were met by Mr. C J. Murphy, Secretary of the Business Men's Association, of the city. Mr. Murphy is a polished, educated and intelligent gentleman and endeared himself especially to the gentlemen composing the committee by his untiring efforts not only to have the visitors enjoy their atay in the city but to make their mission a success. Lieutenant Lockwood, of the U.S. Engineers, Cincinnati, met the Committee and agreed to send Captuin Myler on to-day to look into the feasibility of building temporary Lieutenant Lockwood, the business men of Evansville and the Evansville and Green River Navigatlor Company gave the Committee every possible encouragement And to show the high esteem in which the party was held and the interest manilested in the move might be mentioned the fact that on Monday evening when the Committee was to return the Steamer Evansville was kept at the wharf waiting a full hour and a half while a conference was held with the business men of the city.

The party lelt for Ceralvo Monday evening at 5:30, accompanied by Lieutenant Lockwood, who was on his way to Bowling Green to confer with Captain Myler.

Arriving at Ceralvo they were met by he bus and at 1 o'elock Tuesday were in Hartford praising the Evansville and The farmers are all up with their Green River Navigation Company, the Business Men'a Association, the people of Evanaville generally and Secretary Murphy especially for the elegant treatment received throughout the trip.

Hockport Defents Bartford in a Liveto be Played.

The Rockports came up last Saturday with ther playing clothes on and proceeded in the most unceremonious manner to help the Hartford's to score another defeat. The game was called at about 2 o'clock p. m. and about one hundred people had asscuibled to witness the contest. The home team took a decided lead in the first five innings, but in the sixth they went to pieces and were nuable to collect themselves until the umpire announced the close of the game with the score standing 21 to 14 favor of the visitors.

The game was n very quiet and ordarly one. The Rockport boys are a gentlemanly crowd and expressed themselves as well pleased with the reception given them.

Tom Ingler, of McHenry, umpired the game and did it well.

Monday evening a game was arranged between the Town and the Court House Ring. 'A rattling five inning game was played, resulting in n score of 20 to 8, in favor of the Court House R ng. This was deemed insufficient and they at once proceeded to play another game of five innings, but in the middle of the fourth inning the Town Toughs threw up the sponge. They had been to the bat four times and the Court House Ring three times, the score standing 19 to 5 in favor of the lat-

[PENNSYLVANIA GRIT.] Robert Stansbury is a lumberman In the Santa Rita mountains of Arizona. One day he was held prisoner in his lonely cabin by rain. It seemed as if the rain would never stop.

Rob was finally convinced that his rifle. The wind howled and the rain poured down a long time before he heard the sound again.

When he did hear it his quick hunter's ear told him it was a bear and that it was injured in some way or it would not howl as it did.

Rob thought he had an easy' thing of it, and was soon in sight of his game. It was a brown bear with its hind ieg canght under a large log. How it got there was a mystery at first, but a little investigation convinced Rob that it must have climbed onto the log when the rain had washed and softened the ground uncaused the log to roll. The bear was underneath and stopped the log from was there, and Rob was soon having to hang on and take his chances. an argument with himself about kill-

He made up his mind to do all he could for the wounded animal and went back to his house for rags to tie up the broken leg. With his rifle and a box of salve he returned and was better assurance could you have that soon busy putting the wounded limb in the best shape he could with his that it has cured such multitudes of limited knowledge of surgery. The others? bear knew he was doing her an act of kindness and looked at him as if to convey thanks. Once she raised her head and reached back. Rob watched her go down the hill and attempt to go up the hill on the other side. But the work was too June 2nd., 1894. much for her and instead she went down the gulch a considerable distance and lay down. Rob went to the house completely disgusted.

Strange as it seemed to himself, his first thought the next morning was of the bear and he went outside to see | in pursuance to the following order o if she was in the same place. He did | Court: not expect to find her there, but he did. Then his sympathies commenced to work again and he went down to see how she was getting the Select voting precinct, having along. The bandage was still on her leg and the ground showed that she had made several attemps to get up the hill and failed.

Rob stood looking at her, wonderiug what he had better do, when a peculiar yelp struck his ear. The sound came from up the hillside and Rob left the bear and went to investi-

It was quite a long search before Rob found what he was looking for, and he was then several hundred yards from the wounded bear. He came from a hollow tree. Looking no equal. down he saw several young cubs.

It was not much of a mental effort for Rob to feel convinced that the cubs belonged to the old bear at the bottom of the hill. A howl from her at this moment made him certain that such was the case.

Finally Rob carried the cubs down to the mother and had the whole family comfortably located in a rift in the rocks at the bottom of the hill. The cubs were so small he 'picked them up and carried them and they never made a motion to bite or scratch him.

The cubs grew up without being afraid of man and then went ort to earn their own living. The old bear still lived in the same neighborhood and got around pretty lively, but remained a little lame. The summer rains were just about starting and were coming down unusually heavy. Rob had driven to the nearest store for some supplies and was on his way home. When the river was reached, which was almost dry in the morning, Rob saw there was several inches of water on the bottom. The horses did not want to go in, but Rob used his whip and soon the middle of the stream was reached.

Here the horses refused to go further and the water was getting higher every moment and the roar told that a freshet was coming. Rob was frightened, as the stream was ruuning like a mountain torrent and he was unable to swim. The water reached the wagon bed, and still the horses refused to budge. A roar like a cycione soon came down the gulch, and Rob looked up stream and saw the freshet tearing away before it. Not a moment was to spare for no for the Barbecue. sooner was he in a safe position than the waters came, their surface covered with all kinds of debris. I'oor horses they paid the penalty of their stubborness, for in less than five minutes GRATITUDE OF A BIG BEAR they were swept away and drowned and the wagon crushed into splinters.

Rob felt safe for only a few moments and then the tree commenced to shake and he knew the flood was washing the sand from its roots and it would soon give away.

Rob felt that his time had come. and knew he would never be able to get out by himself if the tree gave way before the torrent subsided.

But give away is just what the tree did. Luckily it fell so that Bob was in the upper branches and did not get into the water at first. But it was only a question of time and branches were washed off so that the some animal was nearby and went for tree sank lower and rob was in the water hanging on a very weak limb.

At this moment Rob became conscious that he was not alone on the tree. He heard splashing and hard breathing near by and then the bear he had assisted came into view. She scared Rob, as he thought she had come to devour him. The bear hing to a branch by her teeth watching Rob One last look around and then he let go and was earried away. Everything was black for a moment and then he felt something come near him. He grabbed it; it was hair, he held on and in a moment felt air in his nostrils. He derneath it and the extra weight had opened his eyes. The world of water was the same he had left and he was surprised and losing his balance fell hanging to his bear's side. She was swimming to the shore with all the rolling further. At any rate the bear strength she had and Rob concluded

Dick Tillford will have everything in the refreshment line AND WE ARE NOT SAVED.

Dr. Coleman Preached an Able Discourse From the Above Textat Greenville, June 3d.

[THE MUHLENBURGER.] Dr. Coleman filled his regular appointment at the Baptist Church Sunday. He read for the morning lesson the 23d chapter of Isaiah, and after prayer and singing, announced his subject from the eighth chapter of Jeremiah-"And we are not saved."

He spoke in substance as follows: The theme of this text is the most exalted that has ever excited either men or angels. The real classification of this world is into the saved and unsaved, all my audience belonging either to the one or the other this morning. The subject of salvation is no secondary affair, no subordinate matter It is, and must be, the most exalted theme to men who acknowledge the existence of God and the accountability of man. In all the religions of the world the existence of a God is taught, it is impressed in nature, and I thank the God of my salvation that the evidence of the existence of a God finds responsive emphasis in the heart of man itself, Salvation is the chief subject of Bible revelation and is most costly. It was not essential to the glory of God that he should save man. He could have existed in all his glory and all mankind been lost. Have you considered this feature of the plan of salvation, that it was not necessary to the glory of God? The suffering, the humiliation and the shame of the sacrifice were not essential to the divine glory, but were essential only to his method in providing a way of salvation. I hope my hearers may go to their homes impressed with the importance of this subject of salvation. I have not prepared a subject beautiful in diction and simile to please in these days of hair splitting theology and discussion. I think the proper subject for all sermons is salvation. The literal significance of the word "salvation" Is deliverence from impending danger. In a religious sense it means deliverence from the love, penalty, guilt and dominion of sin. With a present and eternal security from its destructive power. The man exposed in the top story of the burning building cries aloud for help-the man sinking beneath the angry waters uses his last breath in the cry for aid. This is physical salvation he cries for, and how great is his desire. How much more is the danger that threatens the soul. Salvation also means a co-inheritance with Christ in the possesions of God, and, finally all that heaven is and means. On these several definitions the doctor made strong illustrations and then he turned his attention to the negative condition implied in the text. Was it because there was no salvation provided, no means of obtaining it, or because you are not convinced of its importance, or even not warned or entreated to accept the Turning to the affirmative features of his text he said, you are not saved because, you refuse to seek this salva tion. I ask you to day why you are not saved? There is but a step between you and death. As a tree falls so shall it lie. Oh, the periiof a soul "Home Study." Sent on 60 days that is not saved! You strive against every influence that is designed for your salvation, giving every advantage to the destroyer of your soul. You resent the fact that the gift is free, desiring to offer your own worthiness in exchange for a part, to pay for a thing the value of which is beyond your power to estimate. Rejecting all the pleadings of love and mercy, you stubbornly refuse to believe. You must act the part of a mortal agent. It is not yours to question the purposes of almighty God. It is not necessary to believe that God enforces one of your acts, because he foreknows and is all powerful. God has decreed that if we trust in him we shall be saved. Whosoever believeth in him shall be saved. Whosoever believeth in him shall not perish. Finally, the reason you have not been saved is because you have not determined to be. If you had made as strong an effort to be saved as to keep from it, you would be saved. It is more difficult not to do than to do. You have had to grapple with many questions, but this is the most important. What assurance have you? If you are saved you will obey his commandments, is not, there remains the death, the judgment and eternity.

There is a time we know not when, A point, we know not where, That marks the destiny of m in, To glory or despair.

There is a line by us unseen, That crosses every path, The hidden boundary between God's patience and his wrath.

To pass the limit is to die, To die as if by steaith, It does not quench the learning eye. Or pale the glow of health.

The conscience may be still at ease.

The spirits light and gay,
That which is pleasing still may please.

And care be thrust away. But on that forehead God has set, Indelibly a mark, juseen by man, for man as yet, Is blind and in the dark,

And yet, the doomed man's path May bloom as Eden bloomed, He did not, does not, will not know

Or feel that he is doomed-He knows, he feels that all is well, And every fear is calmed, He lives, he dies, he wakes in hell, Not only doomed but damned.

Subscription Laws for Newspapers. Few readers or publishers of papers tully and clearly understand the was governing subscriptions. The decisions of the United States Court on this subject are:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscription.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers and the papers are not sent to the former address they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals for the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facia evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it, and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrearages, is sent to the publisher.

The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can arrest anyone for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Un:ler this law the min who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid, and then orders it discontinued, orders the postmaster to mark it "refused"and have a postal card sent nothe Weekly Courier-Journal is $1 a tifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft.
